

Superyachts 35 - 80m during this year's enlarged PIBS

The Palma International Boat Show will expand the exhibition site to a new area to meet the great business demand for the nautical event and will feature two different exhibition areas connected by sea thanks to the addition of a new 5,000-square-metre area located in the Club de Mar.

The two exhibition areas, the Moll Vell and the Club de Mar, will be connected by sea via shuttles that will connect the two areas in a five-minute crossing. Visitors to the Palma International Boat Show will be able to tour the two areas with a single ticket, which will make the experience at the show much more attractive.

The organizers had been looking for years for alternatives to expand the exhibition site and be able to accommodate more companies and boats that applied to participate in the Palma boat show. Given the impossibility of growing in the Moll Vell, an agreement has finally been reached with the Club de Mar, which will provide a space for boats of between 35 and 80 metres in length. On land, an exhibition area will be set up with service and equipment companies for this type of yachts, such as repair and maintenance industries, naval engineering, shipbuilding and naval interior design, etc.

It is worth remembering that the Palma International Boat Show has more than forty years of history and is the fair that inaugurates the Mediterranean nautical season. With an average of 30,000 visitors per year and the participation of more than 280 companies, it has become an indispensable tool for boosting an economic sector that is essential for the productive fabric of our community. The Palma Superyacht Village, a section specially designed for boats over 24 metres in length, both sailing and motoryachts still is located in the Moll Vell.
